Effective plans to attract and retain more patients

A practice-branded DPAS Dental Plan is an effective way to make dentistry more affordable for your patients by splitting the cost of routine treatment into manageable monthly amounts. This helps you attract more patients, creating loyalty and generating a guaranteed monthly income.

Unlock the potential of your practice with a DPAS Dental Plan.

Welcome to my regular e-update column which each month will highlight the key events and news for busy practice managers and administrators.

Dear member,

Happy Easter – I can't believe how quickly 2016 is passing – before we know it the summer will be upon us, but then again it's nice to see the sun again after what seemed to be a wet and windy winter!

Next month sees the beginning of our next round of ADAM Seminars so if you haven't yet booked your place why not do so now – the dates are shown on page 7 where you can click on the link to make your booking.

Alongside my column this month you can read about Andrew Bloomfield who recently joined the ADAM Team as one of our Regional Mentors for the South East. Welcome aboard Andrew!

On page 5 there's an interesting article by our friends at DPAS Dental Plans on the importance of communication within the practice.

And on page 8 there's a last minute reminder that the National Living Wage comes into effect on 1st April 2016 so if you haven't made the necessary pay changes within your practice you'd better get moving quickly!

In this continuing series focused on YOU, this month we meet and ask questions of Andrew Bloomfield

Andrew Bloomfield

Job:

Manager at Gallions Reach Dental Clinic and Business Manager at The Implant Experts.
www.gallionsreachdentalclinic.co.uk

Where do you live (and with whom):

I live in Bexley, Kent with my wife Lisa who is a dental nurse at The Implant Experts and our three sons.

Hobbies:

Fishing, coaching football, windsurfing, and playing the guitar (badly).

How did you end up working in dentistry?

My wife introduced me to Mr Bendkowski and Mr Townsend and recommended me for the vacant job as manager at Gallions Reach Dental Clinic, even though I did not have any dental experience.

When did you first get involved with ADAM?

Mr Bendkowski introduced me to ADAM two months after I started and I have been a member ever since. I have recently taken up the position for ADAM as a Regional Mentor for Kent and South East London.

What do you enjoy most about your role?

The people, patients, the team and everyone I come across involved in the dental industry.

What's the most challenging part of your role?

Nothing fazes me; I love the challenge of constantly improving and developing the business to offer a better service and experience for the patient.

Would you recommend a career in dentistry?

Yes, without doubt. Dental can be very rewarding, I work with a great team with the same aims, goals and work ethic as myself, which makes for positive atmosphere on a daily basis.

And if you hadn't gone into dentistry, what would you be doing?

I was running my own design and print business part time when I first started and I thought of dental as a stopgap while I built the business up. Even though it was growing nicely, I began to enjoy my career in dental, so I have sold the business and look forward to a long dental career.

General Dental Council updates its English Language guidance

The General Dental Council (GDC) is committed to ensuring that only dental professionals who demonstrate the necessary knowledge of the English language are able to treat patients in the UK.

On 14 March the GDC published details of how their new powers will allow them to check the English language proficiency of dentists and dental care professionals applying to the register.

These new powers come into force on 1 April 2016. This will apply to all dentists and DCPs – including those from the European Economic Area (EEA) – as current legislation does not permit the GDC to check the language capabilities of such applicants.

As well as new applicants, from 1 April dentists and dental care professionals who apply to return to the GDC register will also have their proficiency in English language considered.

Women in dentistry on the rise

During International Women's Day on Tuesday 8 March, the British Dental Association (BDA) highlighted the growing numbers of women choosing careers in dentistry, and asked what impact this gender shift might have on the profession.

The number of women working in NHS dentistry is steadily rising. In 2014/15 in England, the number of female dentists stood at 11,285, a 3.1 per cent increase on the previous year, and a 44.2 per cent increase on 2006/07 (HSCIC NHS Dental Statistics).

The under 35 and the 35-44 age groups have a greater number of female dentists working than male dentists. In the under 35 age group, 57 per cent of the workforce are female and in the 35-44 age group, 51 per cent are female.

Time for action to reduce hospitalisation of children for dental extractions

The inexorable rise in numbers of young children being admitted to hospital for general anaesthetics for multiple tooth extractions must be halted, says Stephen Fyale, a media spokesman for the British Society of Paediatric Dentistry.

FGDP (UK) welcomes Sugar Tax announcement

The Faculty of General Dental Practice (UK) has welcomed the government's announcement of a tax on sugary drinks, but says this is only one of a number of measures that could be used to improve oral health, reduce childhood obesity and reduce the incidence of diabetes.

Following a campaign by chef Jamie Oliver and national health organisations, including FGDP (UK), the Chancellor of the Exchequer said he will impose a levy on soft drinks with total sugar content above 5 grams per 100ml, with a higher rate to be paid on drinks with more than 8 grams per 100ml. The government says the levy, which will be imposed on producers and importers, will raise around £520 million each year, and the English share of the proceeds will be earmarked for increasing sport and extracurricular activities in schools.

CDO outlines key themes for oral health strategy

The Chief Dental Officer for England, Sara Hurley, has outlined the key themes of her proposed integrated strategy for oral health and dental care.

In a speech to the Faculty of General Dental Practice (UK), which Ms Hurley described as "custodians of the standards that set apart the extraordinary from the ordinary", she called for "more joint endeavours - professional, geographic and conceptual", "greater national direction" over the responsibilities of Local Offices, and "training and support... to ensure that all NHS England Commissioners know what quality oral care looks like".

She added that contract reform is "critical...if we are to make the transition from dental activity to oral health as the desired outcome of the NHS dental service".

The CDO, who was appointed in July last year, said that her top priority for 2016 is a "re-design of the NHS England groups required to assess local need, and design and manage the services in their areas".

Keeping your team on board

Jo Phillpot, Practice Consultant for DPAS Dental Plans talks about the importance of good staff communication in the practice.

“During my time working as a Practice Consultant for DPAS Dental Plans I have noticed that it can take only one or two team members to have a negative attitude towards changes to working practices for it to affect morale across the practice.

I’ve come across this in the past with a number of large practice conversions where the decision had been made by the owners and key personnel to convert from their current plan provider to DPAS, but each had failed to properly inform the rest of their staff of the coming changes resulting in some avoidable discontent.

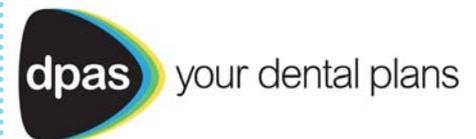

Naturally some people don’t like change and can be wary or fearful of it, especially if they haven’t experienced any issues with their existing plan provider, and don’t understand why the change is happening. This can lead to some resentment at not being involved in such important decisions or dissatisfaction that they are being asked to implement changes with which they don’t necessarily agree.

In both instances I managed to convince the team simply by spending time with them, working one-to-one with concerned individuals, over and above group training, to gain their trust and confidence. This extra attention gave them the reassurance they needed so when the transfer actually took place they were on board to help make it a success - for themselves, the practice and of course for the patients.

Happily both practices witnessed an immediate increase in plan uptake upon moving to DPAS. The principals admitted that with hindsight they should have involved the whole team much sooner in the process and could appreciate the benefit of having the whole team on board in promoting the plan to make it a success.

Spending as much time as is necessary to ensure a practice team is fully informed and confident to promote their new plans is all part of the service we provide to practices. We are with practices as much or as little as they need to ensure success.”

Getting to grips with employment and HR law

29 April 2016
London & South East

13 May 2016
North West

20 May 2016
South West

These half day seminars will cover:

- The headache of recruitment – do's and don't's.
- Contracts – why should you have them and what should be included.
- Policies and procedures – understand what to do with a flexible working request, how to use your grievance and disciplinary procedure effectively, sickness absence how to manage and what to do, why you need a Christmas party policy.
- Workers – who are they and what do they do?
- Auto-enrolment Pension – What's it all about? Have you received your staging date?
- Is my Hygienist/Therapist genuinely self-employed? Understand the self-employed status, the effects and the risks.

Our Speaker - Sarah Buxton

Sarah is a dental HR and employment specialist solicitor who has been acting for practice owners, employers and managers for several years. She specialises in all aspects of HR and employment law including producing bespoke self-employed hygienist/therapist agreements, associate agreements and employment contracts.

She provides on-going daily advice on management and employment issues such as how to deal with lateness, sickness, absences, maternity/paternity leave, dismissals and redundancies.

Sarah also represents employers at the Employment Tribunal in respect of employment disputes.

National Living Wage comes into force in April 2016

A compulsory national Living Wage comes into force on 1st April 2016 for all working people aged 25 and over, and will be set at £7.20 per hour. The current National Minimum Wage for those under the age of 25 will continue to apply.

Who will be entitled to the National Living Wage?

Generally all those who are covered by the National Minimum Wage, and are 25 years old and over, will be covered by the National Living Wage these include:

- Employees
- Most workers and agency workers
- Casual labourers
- Agricultural workers
- Apprentices who are aged 25 and over.

Penalties for failure to comply

With the introduction of the National Living Wage the penalty for non-payment will be 200% of the amount owed, unless the arrears are paid within 14 days.

The maximum fine for non-payment will be £20,000 per worker. However, employers who fail to pay will be banned from being a company director for up to 15 years.

The Low Pay Commission

The Low Pay Commission which currently recommends the level of the minimum wage will recommend any future rises to the National Living Wage rate.

The Living Wage

The new National Living Wage is different from the Living Wage, which is an hourly rate of pay and updated annually. The Living Wage is set independently by the Living Wage Foundation and is calculated according to the basic cost of living in the UK. Employers choose to pay the Living Wage on a voluntary basis.
